MONDAY Course Offerings

Discovery Series: IR-640

Building the Panama Canal: 1880-1914

The Spanish thought about it. The French drew plans for it. In the end though, it took a revolution, technology, money, determination, and grit to complete the Panama Canal. On this unique journey, learn about the epic struggle to carve a nautical shortcut from one ocean to another. Learn about the canal's construction and its impact on world history, commerce, and medicine. Lecture will be supplemented with historical photos.

Art Series: American Folk Art

Folk art encompasses art produced from native or tradespeople. In contrast to fine art, folk art is primarily utilitarian and decorative rather than purely aesthetic. Folk Art is characterized by a naive style, in which traditional rules of proportion and perspective are not employed. Basically, folk art is produced through the genius of untrained artists and has its own characteristics. Various materials, paints, and other items are used to produce this interesting and fascinating artwork. This lecture will take the listener and viewer through the various forms of artwork along with the artists who produced them. It is a journey not often explored and one you will find fascinating.

Highlights of Central Park

See Central Park through the lens of a camera along with commentary describing each photo. Since the mid-nineteenth century, Central Park with its 843 acres has been referred to as "The Jewel of New York City" and has many wonderful sights and experiences. Each year, 40 million people visit Central Park and are treated to a number of wonderful sights. Whether it's the 80 sculptures that dot the landscape, or the 33 bridges and arches (some dating back to 1863), or the acres of water bodies, lawns, and woodlands, you will be treated to a wonderful viewing and informational experience. This lecture will cover some of the park's history and many of its sights and attractions. Amateur photographer, art history enthusiast, and avid researcher, Mario Medici (Mario Medici Lectures, LLC) will take you on these fascinating journeys.

Making Sense of Current Events in Polarized Times IR-945

Join me for a once-a-month discussion of current events. We are currently experiencing a perfect storm of events that will change the very nature of the world in which we live. How it changes will depend a lot on how we perceive competing ideas and tackle the challenges they represent. If we only see the world as black or white, red, or blue, and not the gray that it is, we risk a path of division and divisiveness that will only lead to despair and destruction. Yet, if we wallow in the murky gray waters and cloudy skies that await us, we can eventually have smooth sailing in blue skies and clear waters. This may seem like a rosy scenario, but when we take a deeper look at the causes of the tension, we can get a better understanding of the issues and forge a cohesive path forward.

Wednesdays Online: 9/28, 10/12, 11/9, 12/15

Earlier this year, a drawing of a shivering, nude man, copied from a famous Florentine fresco, was newly attributed to Michelangelo Buonarroti (1475-1564), inarguably one of the greatest artistic geniuses of the Renaissance. With this recently acquired label, this small, sepia-toned drawing, measuring about the size of a piece of printer paper, sold for a record-breaking $24.4 million. This example attests to our enduring fascination with Michelangelo and to the value we continue to place on the art he produced. This class will examine Michelangelo's better and lesser-known works in the varied media of sculpture, painting, and architecture, as well as related contemporary issues of attribution and restoration.
